

Make business cards

Take your business on the go.

Bring your creative ideas together on business cards that you can share with friends, family, or new people you meet (who could turn into customers).

Directions:

Use the tear-apart cardstock to create ten business cards that include your name, business name, and shiny new logo.

Tips:

If you ever want to create a website and/or email address for your business, think about including that information on the cards as well. Make sure to check with your parents first!
